

- 1 The Cardinal-Archbishop of Paris was celebrating Mass with two priest-friends in the great Cathedral of Notre Dame in the French capital.
- 2 In his sermon, the Cardinal mentioned a true story. Three teenage lads agreed that, for a laugh, they would go into a church, and go to the priest for the Sacrament of Reconciliation ('Confession'). The three lads agreed that each would make up a list of sins to mention.
- 3 So the first lad went in, and said: "Father, I've robbed a bank." The second lad went in and said: "I've killed somebody." When it was the turn of the third lad, he tried not to laugh, and said: "I've robbed a bank and killed somebody." The priest - knowing, of course, what was happening - said to the third lad: "For your penance I want you to go and stand in front of the big crucifix in church, and I want you to say some words that I'll give you. Say them three times, and say them in a loud voice."
- 4 And so the lad came out of the confessional and laughed with his friends. He went to the front and stood before the large crucifix - they were still laughing at what had happened. And then the lad repeated - still for a laugh - the words that he'd been told to say: "Jesus, you died for me, and I don't give a damn." The second time, he said the words a little more loudly. The third time he found himself saying the words more slowly, and something he couldn't explain happened within, and he discovered that the words became a question to himself: "Jesus, you died for me, and I don't give a damn (?)"
- 5 The Cardinal - telling this story in his sermon - continued. He said to the people in the cathedral: "I told you that this was a true story. How do I know? Those two lads from years ago are sitting with me now - they are the two priests who are celebrating Mass with me. And I also know this is true because I am that third boy. I was the one who spoke before the crucifix."
- 6 Let's spend a moment in silence, praying very honestly, as we say a few words to Jesus...
